

Will discuss a new anthology that examines the critical idea of watershed discipleship. This compilation of essays uses a theological and ecological approach to understand our relationship with the earth and one another.

